"I grew up in a small Italian town and my taste in fashion was very different from what could be found in the shops at the time. My head was full of designs I wanted to wear and learning to sew them myself was the only option! The biggest motivating factor in creating my own clothes is not wanting to wear the same as everyone else, hence why I mostly sew self-drafted patterns.

"My favourite refashion to date was transforming my seventies dress into a forties tea dress. After it had sat in my wardrobe unworn for many years, I decided it was time to give it a new lease of life, and created an outfit I love."
